Dow Gardens, a 110-acre botanical garden in Midland, Michigan, annually displays over 250 varieties of annual bedding plants. This report contains a comprehensive evaluation of those varieties as they performed in 2015. It is our hope that these findings assist local homeowners and landscapers select varieties best suited for Central Michigan growing conditions.

Each year the Dow Gardens uses a variety of annual bedding plants as part of their summer botanical display. This primary source of seasonal color, is evaluated three times throughout the growing season by Floriculturist and Greenhouse Manager Scott Schulteis, and Horticulturist Abbey Claerhout. These evaluations were made on July 10, July 31, and August 21, 24 and 26, 2015.

The 2015 growing season was slow to start in Central Michigan. A particularly cold winter gave way to a late-arriving spring and summer. Weather data was recorded from late May through early September. The month of June recorded an average high of 78 degrees Fahrenheit and an average low of 55 degrees Fahrenheit. These averages nearly mimicked the month of August, which only had a 2 degree swing upward for night time lows.

	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015
90°+ days	17	25	13	1	7
80°+ days	74	73	45	54	49
Total Rain	7.9in.	10.2in.	8.29in.	7.04in.	12.9in.

Rainfall totals recorded were higher than previous years totaling 12.91 inches during the period the first plant was out (May 26) to the final evaluation date (August 26.) Above is a chart representing historical temperature and rain data.

Annuals of both seed grown and vegetatively propagated varieties were planted out into beds between the last week of May and first week of June.

Respectfully Submitted,

Abbey Claerhout,
Horticulturist

Prior to setting out these annuals, bed preparation consisted of rototilling in a generous portion of fall collected and a balanced fertilizer (in most locations.) Individual horticulturist at the gardens are responsible for proper planting techniques and care once these annuals leave the greenhouse.

This report details the results of the annual bedding plant evaluations as to vigor, profusion of bloom, and uniformity of growth habit on a 1-5 scale (1=poor, 5=excellent), and includes plants for the garden's displays as well as the trial beds.
